

Momentum Meets Mission: Twenty-Six Defense Unveils Advanced Capabilities at AFA

Company to highlight effectors, seeker technology and closing the kill chain at AFA Air, Space & Cyber 2026

FORT WORTH, Texas — Sept. 10, 2026 — Twenty-Six Defense will highlight a range of effectors and seekers at the Air & Space Forces Association's Air, Space & Cyber Conference. The conference runs Sept. 14–16 at the Gaylord National Resort and Convention Center in National Harbor, Maryland.

From long-range air-to-ground effectors such as Rampage to the versatile and compact SkyStriker Block 4E, Twenty-Six Defense offers the speed, precision and autonomy needed to close the kill chain. Selected for their ability to support Agile Combat Employment and multi-domain operations of the modern battle, these solutions and more will be displayed in Booth 1403, inside Prince George's Exhibit Hall at the Gaylord National.

"At Twenty-Six Defense, we're committed to delivering affordable mass with combat-proven technology and American-built reliability," said Luke Savoie, president and CEO. "We're building on our trusted legacy delivering helmet-mounted displays and cockpit solutions that fuse more information for our nation's Airmen to be more lethal, with a range of effectors and precision seekers that dominate the modern fight."

The company's evolution to Twenty-Six Defense codifies an evolution that has been in the process for years, highlighting our alignment with U.S. warfighters, while expanding domestic capacity, operating at a war time footing and focusing on growth. The company is the reportable U.S. business segment of global defense and innovation pioneer Elbit Systems Ltd.
